NATIONAL CHAMPIONS, 1924-1972

Don't be surprised if Southern Cal wins the unofficial national championship in . . . 1977. Coach John McKay's Trojans seem to win it all every five years — 1962, 1967 and 1972. Both wire services, Associated Press (writers) and United Press International (coaches), voted USC No. 1, as did the Football Writers' Association of America.

It was USC's fifth national crown (the first two, 1928 and 1931, were coached by Howard Jones). Only Notre Dame with eight has won more since 1924. And Pacific-8 teams have won seven, runnerup to the Big Ten's 15.

In terms of national titles won, the top coaches since 1924 have been Notre Dame's Frank Leahy and Minnesota's Bernie Bierman, with four each. McKay is one of five coaches who have won three national titles each.

The AP poll was originated in 1936, the UPI poll in 1950. Prior to the polls, the Rissman (1924-30) and Knute Rockne (1931-35) trophies symbolized the championships. Here's the list of titlists:

NATIONAL RATINGS, 1936-72

Notre Dame and Oklahoma have been the nation's most successful majors in 37 years of wire-service polls. Counting 10 points for each first, 9 for second and so on, the Irish have 151 points, the Sooners 120. Over the last 10 seasons, five teams and coaches have dominated the rankings: Texas (Darrell Royal) 51 points, Alabama (Bear Bryant) 50, Nebraska (Bob Devaney) 46, Notre Dame (Ara Parseghian) 45 and Southern Cal (John McKay) 40. The leaders:

Notre Dame . . . . . 151	Ohio State . . . . . 99	Tennessee . . . . . 86	Army . . . . . 61
Oklahoma . . . . . 120	Texas . . . . . 99	Southern Cal . . . . . 76	LSU . . . . . 60
Alabama . . . . . 100	Michigan . . . . . 93	Mich. State . . . . . 72	Minnesota . . . . . 57

add to Big Ten uncertainty. The only pure rookie is Lee Corso, whose Louisville team ranked 18th in the nation last year, setting up his jump to Indiana. The other "newcomers" are Alex Agase, switching to Purdue from Northwestern; Johnny Pont, shifting from Indiana to Northwestern, and Dennis Stolz, Michigan State assistant who replaced Duffy Daugherty.

Life will be more uncertain in the Big Eight, too, with new coaches running the show at Nebraska, Oklahoma, Iowa State and Oklahoma State. The leaders, Oklahoma and Nebraska, both were hit by graduation, which is a handicap sometimes met in this league by redshirts coming up.

Iowa State's Earle Bruce, another of Woody Hayes' ex-aides, has inherited a good nucleus as Johnny Majors' replacement. Bob Devaney finally retired to the Nebraska athletic directorship, naming Tom Osborne as his coaching successor. Ex-assistant Barry Switzer is the new chief at Oklahoma. And former aide Jim Stanley is Oklahoma State's new head man.

Does it come as a surprise that Bear Bryant is expected to have another winner at Alabama? Of course not. The Crimson Tide has dropped only one regular season game in two years. Principal competition should come
